Bankrupt Dancer Tells of Agreement to Pay Her $1,000

a Month, Never Kept.

Witness stand again to-day in her benkruptcy proceedings before Stanley W. Porter, referee in bankruptcy. At the hearing the sgreement of the actives with Mrs. Mary C. Thaw to pay Evelyn Thaw $15,000 down and $1,000 a month provided she would bring suit to bave her marriage with Harry K. Thaw to bave her marriage with Harry of the agreement, but that Mrs. Thaw assets and had given three checks of $5,000 each to her attorney, John Reilly, to cash if he could, and that he had not met with any more success in that regard then are more success in that regard then are in that regard than she had.

CHECKS WERE PRESENTED. Attorney Julius Offenbach, for the Gorham Silver Company, and other big creditors of Mrs. Thaw questioned the fancer for two hours, but did not get much information. The attorney failed locate any assets through the withess. She said two of Mrs. Thaw's hecks were cashier's checks, and payment on them was stopped before they could be presented. The third, she said, was on a New York bank and was not red when presented.

The contract was written on stationery of the Hotel Lorraine, where Mrs. Thaw was stopping when the contract was drawn up. The agreement provided that the money was to be paid by Mra Mary Copley Thaw, Harry K. Thaw or some other member of the Thaw famlly. The witness said that she had or dered proceedings for annulment started. She could not remember just when, but she had given the instructions to her former attorney, Daniel O'Reilly.

TRIED IN VAIN TO CASH THAW CHECKS.

The witness testified that she had made many attempts to collect the three sheeks since they were given to her in 1908, but had been unable to realise on any of them. She was unable to pay her present lawyer, John Reilly, and had told him that he might do anything he pleased with the three checks. Mr. Offenbach was trying to find some seans by which these checks might be turned over to the creditors of the dancer. Mrs. Thaw was represented by John Reilly and Morris L. Shane.

Mr. Reilly went on the witness stand. Me corroborated Mrs. Thaw with regard to his connection with the checks. He cald he had brought suit against the Bank of New York for the $5,000 check He considered his services to Mrs. Eve-lyn Thaw worth $5,000, which he hoped to collect by cashing the Bank of New York check. The other two checks, he

Mr. Offenbach asked Mrs. Thaw if, when she turned the three checks over to Mr. Reilly, he had told her how much she owed him. She said that he had not, but that she knew that he had one considerable work. The bill of the of the three checks to Attorney selly was read into the record.
